OFFICIAL CALL

For a Republican State Convention to Nominate a State Ticket.

At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, held at the city of Parkersburg, February 25, 1892, it was ordered that a convention of the Republican party of West Virginia be held in the city of Huntington, in the county of Cabell, on Wednesday, August 3, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., to nominate candidates for the following named offices, to be voted for at the election to be held on Tuesday, November 8, 1892:

Governor, State Superintendent of Schools, Auditor, Treasurer, Attorney-General, two Judges of the Supreme Court of Appeals (one for the term ending on the 1st of January, 1893, and one for the term ending on the 1st of January, 1894), and two Presidential Electors at Large, and to transact such other business as the Convention may see proper to do.

It is recommended that each county be entitled to one vote in said convention for each 100 votes, or fraction thereof in excess of fifty votes, cast for President Harrison in 1888.

The Executive Committee of each county will please take early steps to secure to its county proper representation in said convention.

The co-operation of all voters is invited who believe in the policy of reciprocity, of protection to American working men, American farmers, and American manufacturers; who favor a sound currency, the building up and development of the State, the correction of abuses in the educational, humane and other institutions of the commonwealth, and economy and reform in the conduct of several departments of the government of the State.

A British View of the American Tariff.

Sheffield Daily Telegraph.

"The promoters of the McKinley tariff meant it to push forward the policy of America for the Americans. One method of realizing it was to keep all work within their own dominions. The country was to be made self-sufficient; what could be produced at home was not to be bought abroad. That was the key-note of the McKinley scheme, and it is working out the idea of its designers with the precision and effectiveness of a machine."

REPUBLICAN victory in the coming election would retard for a long time the progress of the sound commercial doctrines that underlie the commercial greatness of Great Britain and alone maintain British ascendancy.—London Evening News.

At 1890 it was a conflict of predictions; now our adversaries must face trade statistics and prices current.—President Harrison, June 21, 1892.

Killed Her Husband.

A reader of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette asks the proper word to designate a woman who kills her husband. The Commercial Gazette says that "uxoricide" has been thought to be a good word in this case as in the case of a wife-slayer, but there is not good authority for it.

"Maritus" and "confix" being Latin words for husband, the Commercial Gazette asks how "mariticide" or "conjugicide" would do, both being as good in formation as "infanticide," "suicide," and the other "cides."

"Conjugicide" might do if it were not that it would convey the awful suspicion that she had murdered him with a jug, or at least been terribly "finked" when she committed the "rash act."

The best way to meet the question is for wives not to murder their husbands. Then we shall not have to coin a word to describe the thing.

The Allegheny county courts will have to go on double turn to get through with the Homestead business in a generation.

What It Means.

Frank Hurd, the distinguished Ohio Democrat, who declared himself for free trade when his party friends generally were declaring that the Democratic party was as good a friend of protection as any other party, is out in an interview telling what the tariff plank in the Democratic platform means.

His party has not yet gone so far as he would go—although it has gone so far as to denounce all protection as unconstitutional. He would go beyond that, laying direct internal taxes, providing an income tax and levying a duty "on articles which are not produced in this country." This would reverse the entire present policy, and every tariff duty would be a tax on the consumer. This is the free trade idea as it is put in practice by Great Britain. Summing up Mr. Hurd says:

I will simply say further that I regard the platform as a step forward in the march to ultimate free trade. It turns the attention of all the Democrats of the country toward that ultimate. Those who do not want to look toward free trade as the final policy of the United States and who are in the Democratic party, are there by mistake. They ought to get out and get into the party that looks back to protection. The old Whigs in our party who still have a love for protection should be Republicans, and the old Democrats who are in the Republican party, but who still have a love for free trade, should be with the Democratic party. Although the lines are not clearly drawn yet, the platform makes possible such an alignment, and this result, I hope, will soon come.

There is sound sense in these words. Protectionists are out of place in the Democratic party, free traders in the Republican party. The free traders went out of the Republican party in 1884 and have since acted with the Democracy.

Lines to a Misguided Friend.

Esteemed Register:

You do not like to have your party called a free trade party. Then why did you vote in the convention for the free trade plank in your platform?

Why did you vote to insert the declaration that protection is unconstitutional?

Here is what you voted for:

"We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the federal government has no constitutional power to enforce and collect duties, except for the purpose of revenue only."

This was the position of John Q. Calhoun and his fellow South Carolina Nullifiers. You remember, of course, the South Carolina Nullification ordinance in 1832, but you may not have it handy, so here is enough of it to refresh your memory:

"Whereas, the Congress of the United States, by various acts, purporting to be acts laying duties and imports on foreign imports, but in reality for the protection of domestic manufactures . . . bath exceeded its just powers under the constitution . . .

"We, therefore, the people of South Carolina, in convention assembled, do declare and ordain, and it is hereby declared and ordained, that the several acts and parts of acts of the Congress of the United States purporting to be laws for the imposing of duties and imposts on the importation of foreign commodities . . . are unauthorized by the constitution of the United States, and violate the true meaning and intent thereof, and are null, void and no law."

You remember, doubtless, that President Andrew Jackson, a Democrat of Democrats, did not agree with Mr. Calhoun and the rest of the Nullifiers, and you may recall that in a message to Congress he said:

"The object of the tariff is objected to by some as unconstitutional. . . . This authority having entirely passed from the states, the right to exercise it for the purpose of protection does not exist in them, and consequently, if it be not possessed by the general government, it must be extinct. Our political system would thus present the anomaly of a people stripped of the right to foster their own industry, and to counteract the most selfish and destructive policy which might be adopted by foreign nations. This surely cannot be the case; this indispensable power, thus surrendered by the states, must be within the scope of the authority on the subject expressly delegated to Congress. In this view I am confirmed as well by the opinions of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, who have each repeatedly recommended the exercise of this right, under the constitution, as by the uniform practice of Congress, the continued acquiescence of the states, and the general understanding of the people."

Andrew Jackson's opinion on the constitutionality of a protective tariff is not new but it is good and should command your respect. Take the trouble now, if you please, to compare the plank you voted for at Chicago with that provision of the Confederate constitution covering this point:

"The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties and excises for revenue only, necessary to pay the debts, provide for the common defense and carry on the government of the Confederate States; but no bounties shall be granted from the treasury; nor shall any duties or taxes on imports from foreign nations be laid to promote or foster any branch of industry."

If, now, you have a little more valuable time to spare, compare this, Mr. Register, with what you voted for at Chicago and the declaration of the South Carolina Nullifiers, and say whether you can with good conscience ask your readers to go to the polls and vote for what you voted for in the Chicago convention.

Don't you think it is a rather strong dose for Americans who believe they have a country, and that their country has at least the power to defend itself which Andrew Jackson thought it had?

Don't you think it rather late to revive the doctrine of the Nullifiers and of their successors who set up the Confederate States of America?

Isn't it probable that something has been settled in the course of the fleeting years? Or must it all be gone over as though this country had no history?

An early answer that doesn't dodge will oblige yours truly.

A Hideous Scheme Uncovered.

Last Saturday a few West Virginia Republicans representing themselves when up to Deer Park, where Secretary Elkins was to spend a day with his father-in-law, ex-Senator Davis. These West Virginia Republicans thought they would find it pleasant to spend a day in that region themselves, and hoped to be able to induce Mr. Elkins to yield to the desire of the Republican party of West Virginia to place him at the head of the state ticket.

Other West Virginians in great number have called on Mr. Elkins in Washington and at his West Virginia home on the same mission. Those who were at Deer Park have talked with Mr. Elkins before on the same subject. Until now it has not been thought that these visits and talks were of sufficient importance to warrant publication.

The Deer Park visit has become a "conference" and the proceedings have been reported with marvelous exactness by reporters who were not present. It is known exactly what was said and by whom it was said, although it is not known exactly who were there, notwithstanding a hotel register is an open book. It is known for publication what was knocked down and what was set up, and precisely how the Republican party was wrecked on a beautiful day 'way up on the mountain top.

The whole hideous scheme has been uncovered and the plotters stand stripped before the public gaze. The energy and enterprise which have accomplished this undertaking are limited only by the finite bounds of the imagination.

CONGRESSMAN WILSON might step back and let David B. Hill surprise Mr. Cleveland with the news of his nomination at Chicago. That would make a graceful and tearful occasion.

THE only reason for Mr. Cleveland's nomination, and the thing that forced his nomination in spite of all the efforts of politicians, was the fact that, in the minds of the Democratic masses, he represents the idea of free trade. The platform is an unmistakable declaration against all parleying with protection. It puts the Democratic party in the field as committed to the policy of sweeping away every shred of a protective duty.—Henry George, the Free Trader.

Since I have used it I would not be without it. I was always subject to cholera morbus and never found anything else that gives the relief that this remedy does. MASS OF CORRUPTION.

Death Would Have Been Welcome. Spent Hundreds of Dollars Without Relief.

Procured Cuticura. Wonderful Change in Three Months. Completely Cured in Six.

During the war, I contracted some kind of a disease which brought me almost to the point of death. My right arm and leg were one mass of corruption eating into my very flesh. Swelling and itching terribly, causing most excruciating pain. The torture was awful. I had spent hundreds of dollars in futile efforts to get well, or even relief, for I was suffering so that death would have been a happy release. Rev. J. G. Ahern, who was the Pastor of Bickley Circuit, urged me to procure the CUTICURA. I hesitated. Upon their arrival, I began to use according to directions, and in less than three months I noticed a wonderful change. My appetite was good, my breath was sweet, and as I continued to take the medicines the good work went on and on. In six months from the time I started, I was completely cured. The CUTICURA Remedies did the work, and my skin became perfectly smooth and clear, and there is now not the slightest appearance of the disease. I would say in conclusion to all suffering from any kind of blood trouble, don't be deceived. But arise at the fountain head, and get CUTICURA Remedies, even if you have to send a thousand miles for them. G. C. HALL, Sellers, Ga. Sworn and subscribed to before me April 23, 1892. WILLIAM G.
